Networks

A computer network can be defined as a set of two or more computers having interconnection to the same resources, such as exchange files, printers, CDs and other similar equipment. The networks in a computer are built with a great combination of software and hardware. The main purpose of the networks is to facilitate communication through video conferencing, email, instant messaging, etc. Additionally, multiple users are enabled to share a single hardware device, such as a scanner or printer.

TYPES OF NETWORK

Based on the size and the coverage area, networks are categorized into the following types:

- ❑ Personal Area Networks (PANs)
- ❑ Local Area Networks (LANs)
- ❑ Metropolitan Area Networks (MANs)
- ❑ Wide Area Networks (WANs)

- Local Area Network (LAN)

LAN is one of the simplest types of computer networks in which computers are connected together over the span of small distances. This type of network is perfect for sharing resources like printers or data storage.

- Personal Area Network (PAN)

In a personal area network, there is an interconnection of information technology that organized around an individual person typically within a range of 10 meters. This type of computer network can also be interconnected without any need for wires to the internet.

- Wide Area Network (WAN)

A WAN is a complex type of computer network that connects the computer together over larger distances. It allows them to have communication no matter how far they are from each other. One of the best examples of a WAN is internet through computers can connect all around the world.

- Metropolitan Area Network (MAN)

There is an involvement of a computer network that spreads across the whole city in the metropolitan area network. It is bigger than a LAN and covers an area that can range from many miles to ten miles. The major use of the MAN is to connect many LANs together for forming a larger network.

What Makes an Effective Leader

Effective leaders have the ability to communicate well, motivate their team, handle and delegate responsibilities, listen to feedback, and have the flexibility to solve problems in an ever-changing workplace.

How You Can Build Leadership Skills

You do not need to supervise or be a manager to cultivate leadership skills. You can develop these skills on the job in the following ways:

- Take initiative: Look beyond the tasks in your job description. Think long-term about what would be beneficial for your department and the company. Try to brainstorm ideas and commit to doing work that goes beyond the daily routine.
- Request more responsibility: While you wouldn't want to ask for additional responsibility in your second week on the job, once you've been in a position long enough to become an expert, you can share with your manager that you're eager to grow your leadership abilities. Ask how you can help out—are there upcoming projects that require a point person? Is there any work that you can take off of your manager's to-do list?

- Target specific skills: If you have a specific skill that you want to develop—whether it's creative thinking or communication—create a plan to improve your abilities in this area. This could mean taking a class, finding a mentor to help, reading books, or setting a small goal that forces you to develop this skill. Talk to managers and co-workers, as well as friends outside of the office, to help develop your plan to improve.

2. Career Exploration:

- Job Market Information: Career counsellors provide insights into different industries, job roles, and career paths, helping individuals explore options that match their interests and skills.
- Educational and Training Requirements: Guidance on the qualifications needed for various careers, including degrees, certifications, and training programs.

3. Goal Setting:

- Short-term and Long-term Goals: Collaboratively setting realistic career goals and creating actionable plans to achieve them.
- Career Planning: Developing a roadmap that includes education, skill development, and job search strategies.

4. Job Search Strategies:

- Resume and Cover Letter Writing: Assistance in crafting effective resumes and cover letters tailored to specific job opportunities.
- Interview Preparation: Preparing for job interviews by practicing responses, improving presentation, and addressing potential concerns.
- Networking: Guidance on building and leveraging professional networks to enhance job prospects.

5. Career Transitions:

- Changing Careers: Support for individuals looking to switch industries or job roles, including identifying transferable skills and exploring new career options.
- Returning to Work: Assistance for those re-entering the workforce after a hiatus, including updating skills and addressing gaps.
